

Northern Illinois University

UWHealth

Small Voices, Big Feelings

Helping Children Understand Grief

Most young children are aware of death, even if they don't understand it so when a loved one dies, children express their grief in different ways. Join Adam Carter, Ph.D, National Clinical Director of the National Alliance for Children's Grief, as he shares his research and experience on children and grief that will help professionals identify new strategies for working with children who are navigating the challenges of grief.

WHEN

Saturday, January 29, 2022 | 10 a.m-12 p.m.

WHERE

Northern Illinois Hospice (limited in-person seating)
4751 Harrison Ave., Rockford or via Zoom

REGISTER

northernillinoishospice.org/events

Adam W. Carter, Ph.D. currently serves as the National Clinical Director of the National Alliance for Children's Grief. He is a professional counselor and counselor educator who received his doctoral degree in Counselor Education and Supervision, with an emphasis in multicultural counseling, from The University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Adam has taught courses in CACREP accredited master's level clinical mental health programs and doctoral level courses in counselor education and supervision and served as the Trauma-Informed Counseling Graduate Certificate coordinator at Northern Illinois University.

CEUs available for school counselors, mental health counselors, and Registered Nurses. Free of charge.

Objectives

1. Participants will be able to identify children's nonpathological and complex grief responses within a wellness-based child developmental framework.

2. Participants will be able to identify how and where children's grief reactions may present in their professional setting.

3. Participants will be able to provide examples of how they can incorporate grief-informed practices into their work with children who are grieving.

CEUs provided by:

Northern Illinois University

OHIO NURSES ASSOCIATION

Funding for this program provided by the Rockford East/Cherry Valley Rotary Club.

Northern Illinois University, CAHE Department has been approved by NBCC as an Approved Continuing Education Provider, ACEP No. 4232. Programs that do not qualify for NBCC credit are clearly identified. Northern Illinois University, CAHE Department is solely responsible for all aspects of the program.